THE DECLINE OF THE "REDS"

That the country has been turning sharp corners without running into the ditch is simply another proof that the American nerve keeps steady even though there are innumerable ruts and washouts endangering the highways marked by the milestones of property destruction, decreased production, inflation, rising prices and enormous expansion of debts. Half the world has been brought to bankruptcy and very heavy burdens have fallen upon the other half through the enhanced cost of living. But the American spirit and inclination to play the game of life fairly and to throw everyone out who tries to stack the cards, have triumphed. A few months ago the country was prepared to view with grave apprehension any attempt to upset the Government, while today the situation is entirely different. The State Department at Washington has just made public a "foreign plan of Soviet Russia," which was outlined in captured documents that were being smuggled into this country, proving that the American Communists were going to seek as their goal the overthrow of the American Federation of Labor and unite with the I. W. O. and other "red" organizations, "for the purpose of the projected armed revolution." The proposal has created no uneasiness, even though it divulges a purpose to incite the workers of all countries "to rise against their capitalists, and to wrest the power from the Capitalistic State," through armed insurrection.

When a person reads such stuff nowadays it is only to wonder how these Russian swank such explosives without burning off their long whiskers—but really their "foreign plans" do not cause any great concern. We do know, though, that there was a period of unrest in the United States when such schemes created intense uneasiness in Washington. It is unfortunate, however, that so many trouble-makers still survive.

THE OLD VIRTUES

The bank clearings outside of New York are running about twenty five per cent above what they did a year ago, and the clearings in the Big City are even more than that. There is no mistaking the activity existing in industrial affairs. Agricultural products show a decline and the farmers are complaining that they are the first to suffer from falling prices. Merchants are approaching the Summer and Fall buying season with great caution, as there are strong indications that food and wearing apparel will be cheaper, and in any event most buyers are not taking the hazard of laying in big stocks.

Common sense and the practice of the old virtues, industry, self restraint, prudent forethought and a spirit of cooperation have apparently succeeded "on east," and gradually the Nation is getting in step again after several years of scintillating grandeur accompanying the open season for hunting men.

OLD AND NEW MONEY

This is going to be a campaign in which there will be no quarreling about "the gold standard," "sixteen to one," or any other forms of money no matter whether Mr. Bryan runs the Democratic party, or his antithesis, Senator Bailey, "comes back" in Texas. The "flying dollar" has succeeded the gold dollar, and gold coins have hidden themselves out of sight. That they exist and have a proper place in the world of finance and trade is beyond question, but with bank credits high and every body a bond holder, and tens of thousands of new investment accounts opened, who wants to carry around a load of gold to make their clothes baggy?

It would be atrocious had taste in these affluent times when so many people are busy trading off their last year's automobiles to get the latest Spring styles in 1920 cars, with the result that automobiles manufacturing shows an increase of nearly twenty seven per cent, notwithstanding the fact that this year's cars cost from twenty five to forty per cent more than those of a year ago. And in view of the swollen tides of personal fortunes will somebody please explain why the man who pays

GRANGE NEWS

It was also voted to have our 3rd annual fair this fall. A communication was read by the Worthy Lecturer from State Lecturer C. O. Purinton, announcing that Bear River Grange won the $10.00 prize in the State contest in 1919, which, of course, makes the members feel very proud, as they have all worked hard the past year, and the honor is all theirs, for without their loyal support the Lecturer could have accomplished but little. Grange voted to enter the contest again this year. Literary program: From M to Z entertain. Sister Gwendolin Godwin being present, and having with her an original poem which she had been asked to write quite a few weeks ago, was assigned first on the program. The poem was entitled, "My life at the Y. W. C. A., Portland" and was much enjoyed by all. We all agree that Sister Godwin must have had some pleasant times.

MR. AND MRS. BEAN SURPRISED

From Oxford Democrat. Last Tuesday, April 6, was the fortieth anniversary of the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. J. Hastings Bean, but they had no thought of celebrating it until without any inkling of the affair they were suddenly visited by thirty or more of their friends in the evening. It was unmistakably a surprise party.

During the evening Alton C. Wheeler, in behalf of the guests, presented Mr. and Mrs. Bean with a handsome oak rocker upholstered in leather, and Mr. Bean responded appropriately. A very lively and pleasant evening was spent by the party.

J. Hastings Bean and Miss Cornelia Mason were married at Mason, April 6, 1880. There was born to them one, Donald H. Bean, now at South Paris. In 1894 Mr. Bean was elected register of deeds for Oxford County, an office which he held for twenty years, and in 1897 the family moved to South Paris which has since been their home.

Mr. Bean is a valuable citizen of the town. He is president of the South Paris Savings Bank, secretary of the Paris Trust Co., and holds other public positions of lesser importance. While a resident of Mason he represented the class of townsmen of that town as a part for a term in the Legislature.

During the festivities of Tuesday evening the following verses, written by Albert W. Walker, were read to him. The day, as well as being the anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Bean, was Mr. Walker's birthday.

Forty years of wedded life,
Forty years of homelike pleasure,
These are the dreams we bring back to you,
Accept them with a taped up measure.

We catch the sound of the merry laugh
After the person had plainly said,
"Will then take this man for better or worse?"
"I will," she smilingly said.

So out in the world together they go,
And up hill and down hill they go,
But honest endeavor is sure to win,
Where each to the other is doing his part.

Hastings and Clara we bring you greetings,
You to us have not grown old,
Memories that are not fading,
Are better far than mine's gold.

May you live to see the golden wedding,
May your wishes and pains be rare,
May the memories of this evening,
Ever hover around this chair.

Again dear friends we greet you,
Please accept this little rhyme,
'Twas dictated at the request of your daughter,
Not an evil intention of mine.

ALVIN E. CHAPMAN

Mr. Alvin E. Chapman passed away at the home of his mother Mrs. Wm. Griffin, last Friday. He was born in Bethel, June 18, 1890, the son of Virgil H. and Elizabeth (Clark) Chapman, and has always made his home in Bethel.

During the recent war he was called to the 7th Division and served to the 303rd Machine Gun Battery. He was gassed and has been a great sufferer from the effects of it ever since. The funeral was held last Monday at Rev. Mr. Little officiating. The service was attended by a body

A FORMER BETHEL BOY

Mr. John Preston True Resigns From Houghton, Mifflin Co.

After over 40 years of service, for the most part in the Educational Department, Mr. John Preston True of Waban, Mass. (b. Bethel, 1859) has resigned from the great publishing house of Boston; and plans to take a Sabbath year of rest and amusement; after which he will doubtless take up with renewed vigor his private work as an author, which hitherto necessarily has been with him but a "sideline" of profitable pleasure.

He has seen the "Department" grow from nothing to the point where it is now selling "The Riverside Literature Series" (which began with an issue of Evangeline) from somewhere in the 22nd or 23rd million—he really has forgotten which, and a part of his work covered correspondence about these and other books with schools as distant as Syria and Japan, hence the allusions in the poem given below.

The other chiefs in the Department inveigled him into a luncheon party at the Boston City Club on the last day (March 31), headed by the Corporation Treasurer in charge of a substantial purse which was then and there presented; and it is noteworthy that four of those present had been boys just out of college when they joined, each one in his turn, the Treasurer not excepted, serving his appointed time as messenger-boy. So, once more they, for the hour, were all boys again together.

Once more back at his desk and deep in the closing-up of business still unfinished, suddenly he was aware that the entire Department had silently massed itself in the room; whereupon the senior lady was brought forward by the Dept. Manager and reduced Mr. True to a state of breathlessness by a most eloquent speech setting forth all that he had been to them in vividly in the years that were past; and then from the entire Department presented him with a beautiful silver, goldlined loving-cup, appropriately engraved and stating the years "1880-1920" which marked in round numbers his term of service.

TO J. P. T.
As from the bow thy arrow sped its way,
And like to that of William Tell of yore,
It clove the fated apple to the core,
So may the message that we send today,
Not averse from course nor in its path delay,
But straightaway may it go unto thy heart.

For we would have thee know ere thou depart
That our goodwill shall go with thee at any,
"Thus meet the first Rev. Lit., a phrasing mood
What some of us were still in swaddling bands,
And as this grew in number then we came
To place thee all an embryo of man's lands.
And here thee, John, and give thee health and ease
And many years to spend with books and leisure."

And here thee, John, and give thee health and ease
And many years to spend with books and leisure."

Note: The William Tell allusion refers to Mr. True's feat at the National Archery Tournament last August, in shooting an apple from a dummy child's head at fifty yards, on Nahler's Field, Cambridge, Mass. His friends won't let him forget it.

There are still some Bethel residents who remember Johnny True, the boy naturalist, whose early teachers may recall numerous experiences, when in school hours snakes, issued from his pockets, and whose leisure was found filled with frogs as a convenient way to carry them home! Also as possessing an aquarium which caused family inquisitions from the solemn creaking of the monster hollockers! Later on his first book published in his teens with Miss Abbott's cordial recognition, "Their 'Job and Clara,' has its opening chapter laid in the old mill under the Mill, portraits of some Bethel boys and girls.

His later books are still in demand. The "Iron Stars" being in use in New York public schools, a book which he dedicated to a "Model of perfect English." We may hope that his trained pen will guide his new leisure and give more of his wholesome books to the youth of our land.

A CHANGE IN MANAGEMENT

Beginning with the next issue the Citizen will be under the management of Mr. David M. Forbes.

Mr. Forbes needs no introduction to Bethel people as he has been connected with the Citizen office for more than twelve years, and for the past seven years has had charge of the mechanical department. His strict attention to business during these years has merited the confidence now placed in him and we have no fear for the future of the Citizen.

In passing, the present management wishes to thank those who have supported the Citizen and made possible the maintenance of the job printing department, and asks for your continued support under the new management.

MARTIN V. STOWELL

Mr. Martin V. Stowell passed away at his home in Portland, April 8th. Mr. Stowell was over eighty years of age and was a veteran of the Civil War. He lived in Bethel many years and will be remembered as a faithful workman at his trade, a stone mason; a kind neighbor, who always had a pleasant word for all whom he met. He is survived by two sons, Elmer and Arthur Stowell of Yarmouth, besides several grandchildren and other relatives.

NATURE

By George Wilson Jennings
A man who observes nature is not supposed to collect an audience every time that he looks abroad upon the earth or upward to the sky. So that a man's contemplation of nature is, like his religion, a subject of personal pleasure to himself, if he makes too much parade of it before the world he runs some danger of losing it.

Nature study with friends, especially with young friends when one can in strict terms without appearing to act, the schoolmaster, is desirable, yet still the best hours of one's converse with nature are those during which he has all to himself. It is then that the career runs free and as far as the light of heaven. All vanity is subdued, bitterness is sweetened and hope is created as well as enlightened. In nature, all is arranged for the most perfect tranquility and just reserve, profuse to none but bountiful to all.

Emerson went daily to walk in the woods, rambling aimlessly or taking physical leisure in whatever way for the moment pleased him. But he never gained some definite new thought, much as some other wanderer might pluck a flower. He too loved the flowers and birds and all of Nature, but he beheld them all with a mental vision rather than the physical. They were parts of a plan, each one co-ordinate with all the rest. They gave a proverbial settling to his thoughts and out of this settling they shone at least, brighter by contrast.

The writer recalls one of our talented and gifted teachers, whose earthly career has recently ended. She had been from a child a close observer and student of nature in every form. Having spent the greater part of her wonderful life in the "Pine Tree State", she could find no better poetry than that of bloom, and no sweeter music than that of birds. The love of the beautiful gave to her life an indescribable charm and loftiness, which she imparted to others. She saw beauty in the insect life and the marsh particularly appealed to her and there she saw the spirit there in, which few people in nature study could discover. The birds, the mountains, the river and brooks as well as every tiny flower, had a language for her and she saw the Creator and his purpose in all these, but death claimed her, and the great peace which surrounded her home sang to her while she lived and today these lofty and noble trees are singing a requiem to her memory. She wrote:

While still on earth, may my course be Ever heavenward."

To any man the call of the marsh is threefold; whether he realizes it or not, his faith in all renews is strengthened in watching this yearly recurrence. Dead as any death appears the marsh during winter's long sleep—no other place is so abundant in summer. So many people dread the idea of dissolution. Yet the marsh that can die, returns to life at the first breath of balmy spring. "Though a man die, yet shall he live again." Humanity is cheered and encouraged by that message, whether it comes by precept or thought.

EIGHTY-SEVEN EARTH-QUAKES IN 1919
Though the general public may not be aware of the fact, the United States usually experiences from 100 to 200 earthquakes each year. This is shown by reports sent to the Weather Bureau, United States Department of Agriculture, from the large number of stations which it maintains in various parts of the country and from its voluntary co-operators who send in notices of earthquakes observed in their respective localities. The number of disturbances last year was 87, and the number reported the previous year was 137. A very large proportion of these, of course, are so slight as to be entirely unnoticed by the public. On the Pacific coast slight earth tremors are of sufficient frequency to cause no comment whatever. The majority of quakes reported are from that region.

One surprising fact, however, shown by the summary of earthquake reports for 1919, which has recently been prepared, is that more than a score of these disturbances occurred in the Mississippi Valley. The region comprising southern Illinois, southern Indiana, western Kentucky, and western Tennessee experienced 20 quakes, while one was recorded in northeastern Missouri, two immediately south of Wichita, Kansas, and one in Washington, D. C. Many disturbances in the total number reported would have wholly escaped attention but for the seismographs, which are so delicate that they usually will detect a violent shock, no matter in what part of the world it occurs.

YOUR finest silk waists—How would you like to use them to sift your flour? Sounds extravagant, doesn't it?—Yet we do practically the same thing with

WILLIAM TELL FLOUR

Every pound of William Tell Flour is sifted through finest silk—not once, but thirteen times.

Expensive? Yes, but William Tell must be the finest and best flour that can be made, and silk sifts the flour better and finer than any other material yet discovered.

This is only one of many expensive processes which we employ in our efforts to make William Tell a perfect flour for you.

Next time tell your grocer—WILLIAM TELL.

APRIL
Florence M. Osborne
April Sunday is mellow and gay,
April Monday is blowy,
April Tuesday is rainy and gray,
April Wednesday is snowy,
April Thursday is bright and clear,
April Friday is sunny,
April Saturday's damp and drear—
April weather is funny!

GOOD NEWS
Mother Nature sent a message today!
It didn't come in the usual way,
By Uncle Sam's mailman, tall and straight,
Whom I love to see at our old gray gate.
No, it came in a funny, jolly way.
And you couldn't guess if you guessed all day.
I was shivering in the chilly breeze
When a robin alighted in our trees.
He looked rather cold, as if he were too soon,
And as if he wished it were sunny June,
But I guessed Dame Nature had sent him here
And I knew his message was, "Spring is near!"
Robin stared at me with his brave,
bright eyes,
And looked as if smiling at my surprise;
Then away he flew on his tireless wings
To spread the glad news of a speedy spring.
Now wasn't the robin a mailman, quack?
And the loveliest message—"Spring is here."
—Eleanor Wallace.

UP IN MAINE
Though I've traveled northward, south,
From the east to glowing west,
There's one strip of sunlit woodland that surpasses all the rest; There's one corner of this Union that will ever seem the best.
There's a charm in every laughing stream, each rock and sturdy tree;
Where the breezes tell their secrets, and the birds all sing for me;
Where you pick your flowers for nothing, and all God's outdoors is free,
Is my own land, 'tis my home-land,
up in Maine.

Up in Maine, good old Maine!
Listen now and hear the pine tree's soft refrain.
Where the flowers smell the best, and you find your heart in rest.
And the whole wide world is blest—
Up in Maine.
Up in Maine, good old Maine!
Hear the music of the softly falling rain.
Where you find Love's own sweet leav-
en;
See the clouds by rainbows driven; and the pine tree points towards heaven—
Up in Maine.

There the air seems always clearest,
and the sky its fairest blue;
There's strength in even her coldest winds, and healing in her dew;

There you're born again each morning,
and each day the world is new.
May no treason touch or haze
through the swift advancing years; Move straight onward, move straight upward, free from stain or troubling fears;
Bare your head and call a blessing from the kindly God who hears; Bless our own land, bless our homeland—Bless old Maine!

STRIKES
Strikes are quite proper, only strike
right;
Strike to some purpose, but not for a fight;
Strike for your manhood, for honor and fame;
Strike right and left till you win a good name;
Strike for your freedom from all that is vile;
Strike off companions who often beguile;
Strike with hammer, the sledge and
the axe;
Strike off bad habits with troublesome tax;
Strike out unaided, depend on no other;
Strike without gloves, and your foolishness smother; Strike off the fetters of fashion and pride;
Strike where 'tis best, but let wisdom decide;
Strike a good blow while the iron is hot;
Strike and keep striking, till you hit
the right spot.

SINGING IN THE RAIN
When the sun shines all can sing,
Let me lift the glad refrain
When the sky's a drooping wing—
Love still singing in the rain!
All can chant when days are clear,
All can dance when skies are blue;
What the world delights to hear
Is singing when it's raining, too.
Singing! Singing back the light
To the worried heart and torn;
Friendly singing through the night,
Lending love to gates of morn!
Burst and tremble, far and near,
Oh thou music of the soul,
When the world most needs thy cheer,
When the storms around us roll!

A RAINY-DAY PARTY
We have rummaged the trunks in the attic,
Where the cobwebs are thick in the gloom;
We have searched through all of the closets,
Save that in the company room.
And the hats and the coats and the dresses
That were carefully put away,
And left to the moths and forgotten,
We shall wear to our party today.
So what if the storm is raging,
And filling the yard with snow?
We are having the loveliest party
In the garments of long ago!
Hatted and hooded in velvet and pauze.

TIME TO HOPE
Open all the windows
To the sun!
Winter's reign is over,
Spring begun;
Darkness is departing,
Skies are blue,
Distances are dawning
The mists through;
After longest waiting Spring is won—
Open all the windows
To the sun.

Signs of gloomy winter
Still remain.
Last year's leaves lie sodden
On the plain,
But the light stays longer
In the street,
And about the garden
Songs are sweet;
Give the flowers a welcome
One by one—
Open all the windows
To the sun.
Take to heart the sunshine,
Weary men,
After disappointments
Hope again—
God will clothe the meadows
In bright gold,
He will give you blessings
New and old,
Triumph after failure
Shall be won
Open Faith's clear windows
To the sun.

IMMUNITY TO HOG CHOLERA

LASTING
A series of recent experiments on duration of immunity to hog cholera following simultaneous inoculation of young pigs supports the conclusion that the protection is lasting. The investigations were conducted at Ames, Iowa,
by specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture.
Altogether 171 pigs, inoculated when
a week to six weeks old and exposed to hog cholera, at times varying from 5
months to 9 months and 26 days later,
were found without exception to be immune to that disease.
Three of the pigs, however, died
during the period of exposure from causes other than hog cholera.
There was no apparent ill-effect from the simultaneous inoculation in any of the pigs.
There was no difference in the immunity of pigs from immune and non-immune sows.
Pigs that were approximately one week old received 10 cubic centimeters
of anti-hog cholera serum and 12 c. c.
of virus. Pigs that were three weeks
old or more received from 15 to 20 c. c.
of serum and from 12 to 24 c. c. of virus.
Immunity was tested by injecting 5
c. c. of virus into the animals when they had attained weights exceeding, in many cases, 200 pounds. None of the hogs contracted cholera. The experiments appear to disprove assertions by some observers that simultaneous inoculation of young pigs is not lasting and that immunity disappears at stages of growth variously placed from weaning time up to 50 or 60 pounds in weight.

SIMPLICITY

By George Wilson Jennings
One will find in the daily walks of life, that the greatest truths are the simplest and so are the greatest men.
Simplicity is the truest friend of nature,
a jewel rarely found and the most difficult to copy.
During a recent visit to a friend's house in the famous "City of Brotherly Love," the writer was greatly impressed with the natural, quiet simplicity of the family and home. Here was represented vast wealth. This friend's house was substantially but plainly furnished, but what greatly impressed the writer was the simple manner of speech, the entire household having a natural, unassuming air which was truly refreshing to find in these days of vast riches which usually carries with it not only pomp but idle display. During this sojourn at my friend's home I could not restrain from remarking to my host: how much I admired the quiet, simple home life of one of his wealth and station.
He replied, "Since my early life I have ignored show in every form and sense of the word and have at all times instilled in the minds of my family, that pomp and display must not be tolerated in the household, for simplicity will always make life much happier and far more liveable, and he added, quoting Longfellow, "In character, in manners, in style, in all things, the supreme excellence is simplicity."
So my readers! If you wish to be more like a child, study what a child can understand that is—Nature, for it is always more difficult to be simple than complicated, and far more difficult to appreciate pictures that are painted with many colors, than those which are painted with a choice simplicity. Our best artists as they advance in their art, toward perfection, are found to dispense more and more with technique for simple and natural expression. The most splendid companion is the simple, frank person, without any high aspirations to oppressive greatness—one who loves life and understands the use of it; for such a person we would gladly exchange the greatest genius, as well as the most profound thinker and student.
One of our famous writers has said that, "The world would not exist if it were not simple. This ground has been tilled a thousand years, yet its powers remain over the same; a little rain, a little sun and each spring it grows green again." Simplicity is the character of life and it never fails to charm.

IMMUNITY TO HOG CHOLERA

LASTING
A series of recent experiments on duration of immunity to hog cholera following simultaneous inoculation of
young pigs supports the conclusion that
the protection is lasting. The investigations were conducted at Ames, Iowa,
by specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture.
Altogether 171 pigs, inoculated when
a week to six weeks old and exposed
to hog cholera, at times varying from 5
months to 9 months and 26 days later,
were found without exception to be immune to that disease.
Three of the pigs, however, died
during the period of exposure from
causes other than hog cholera.
There was no apparent ill-effect from
the simultaneous inoculation in any of
the pigs.
There was no difference in the immunity of pigs from immune and non-
immune sows.
Pigs that were approximately one
week old received 10 cubic centimeters
of anti-hog cholera serum and 12 c. c.
of virus. Pigs that were three weeks
old or more received from 15 to 20 c. c.

DANGERS OF A COLD

Bethel People Will Do Well to Heed Them

Many bad cases of kidney trouble result from a cold or chill. Congested, son-laden blood, and backache, headache, dizziness and disordered kidney action follow. Don't neglect a cold. Use Donnan's Kidney Pills at the first sign of kidney trouble. Follow this Bethel resident's example:

P. M. Wood, 4 Park St., says: "My kidneys began to annoy me some years ago after I had strained my back while lifting. After that, my back ached pretty badly and I was in miserable shape for a long time. When I took cold, my kidneys got congested and they acted irregularly. I finally used Donnan's Kidney Pills and I never took another medicine that acted so quickly. I soon had relief from the backache and my kidneys were regulated. I get Donnan's Kidney Pills at Bosserman's Drug Store as needed and they always help me."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Donnan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Wood had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mrs. Buffalo, N. Y. Adv.

The Investment with the Big Future is the Hydro-Electric Security

The Hydro-Electric Security With the Big Future is the Central Maine Power Co. 7 per cent. Preferred Stock.

The business of the Central Maine Power Co. has been going on now for twenty years under the present management and for 10 years under its present name. During that time it has grown from annual gross receipts of about $1,500 to annual gross receipts of over $1,360,000.

Through the past 14 years the Company has done part of its financing through the sale of preferred stock. In that time 2,600 people (95 per cent of them citizens of this State) have become stockholders.

The Company has, since its beginning, made an earnest effort to give every one of its customers all the value that it possibly could for every dollar paid to it, and to extend its facilities as rapidly as possible, so as to serve completely, insofar as it was commercially possible, the territory covered by its franchise.

Because of its broad gauge policy and its steady and healthy growth and because of present world-wide labor and fuel conditions the Central Maine Power Company now faces its great opportunity.

The closing of the war brought many changes in the industrial situation. Maine manufacturers are increasing their business and consequently their demands for power.

New industries are coming to Maine where they can depend on stable labor conditions and ample supplies of hydro-electric power.

The time has come when the Central Maine Power Company can develop a large hydro-electric plant and in consequence greatly increase the volume of its business and at the same time substantially reduce its operating cost and correspondingly increase its profits.

To meet the growing demand for more power the Company is building at Skowhegan a power station that will more than double its hydro-electric output. To finance the preliminary work on this new development 5,438 shares of Central Maine Power Company 7 per cent Cumulative Preferred Stock have been issued.

Why It Is An Ideal Investment for Maine People

This stock, to sum it up briefly, possesses ten qualities which go to make it an ideal investment for Maine people:

- 1 Security of principal. You can feel more than reasonably sure of getting back all you put in it. When financial conditions return to normal the stock has, it seems to us, better than an even chance of appreciation in value.
- 2 A fixed rate of interest—always $7 per share per year.
- 3 A fair yield—6 1-2% net.
- 4 Ready salability. Our preferred stock is, we are confident, easier to sell in Maine than any similar security. The stock sold readily through the war, and has since steadily increased in popularity. Recent sales by our own force of 460 and 500 shares a week are proof of this.
- 5 Acceptability as collateral. Banks in Maine usually lend from 80% to its full market value.
- 6 Freedom from direct tax. This is of growing importance, as tax assessors and legislative bodies turn to intangible property as a source of additional revenue.
- 7 Redeemable by the Company at 120 and accrued dividend.
- 8 Freedom from care. The dividends are paid quarterly by mail. You would continue to receive dividends in case of loss of your certificate by fire or theft; and could, by going through the necessary formalities, obtain a new certificate to replace the one which was lost.
- 9 Convenience of the units of denomination. Price $107.50 a share. Terms as low as $10 down and $10 a month are offered.
- 10 Stability in the market. Through the past five years of financial disturbance the price has been maintained at $107.50 a share, due to
 - (a) The wide distribution of stock in the hands of many small investors
 - (b) The unquestioned credit of the Company
 - (c) The fact that this Company has shown a persistent regularity of earnings
 - (d) The fact that it has, on its preferred stock, paid 53 dividends.

We Recommend This Stock As A Sound Investment

A COMPANY like the Central Maine Power Company that resolutely faced war and reconstruction conditions and met and overcame obstacles, that raised the pay of its employees, extended its business, put through a program to more than double its water power, that maintained its credit and the value of its securities right through war time and after-the-war readjustment, should surely be a company that will grow and develop, now that fuel and labor conditions are sending so many manufacturers to Maine and seem to be assuring the permanent success of those now here.

The officers of the Central Maine Power Company believe that its Cumulative Preferred Stock is a sound and attractive investment and recommend it as such to the public. The price is $107.50 a share; the yield 6 1-2 per cent net.

The 7% Cumulative Preferred Stock of the Central Maine Power Company is non-assessable, it is preferred both as to assets and dividends, it is redeemable at the option of the Company, on 30 days' notice at 120 and accrued dividend. The stock is a legal investment for Maine savings banks. It is tax exempt in Maine. The dividends are payable January 1, April 1, July 1 and October 1. The price is $107.50 a share. The yield is 6 1-2% net.

A QUEER BLACK LIST
The American Federation of Labor in the performance of its legitimate functions towards industry is a most worthy and useful national enterprise, and there are not many people but who wish it well in its work. But there have been a lot of foolish political notions floating about during the past two or three years, and Mr. Gompers has led the organization of which he is the titular head to the support of schemes that would have been looked up, instead of being permitted to run at large. For instance, Mr. Gompers took a decided stand in favor of unionizing the letter carriers and policemen of the United States, and there was pretty good reason to suspect that the Army and Navy would have followed had not this unworthy scheme gone awry. Mr. Gompers also advocated retaining the railroads by the Government for two years longer, and ultimate government ownership. He wanted control over credit taken from financiers and invested in a public agency. The old complaints against the Government protecting its people from the use of its machine guns in the courts, especially in the trial
